Harassed Liaison Officers Try to Get Opponents Into Same Room

LONDON, Feb. 22.—At noon today the two Turkish delegations in this city to attend sessions of the Near East conference housed in the same hotel, conference housed in the same hotel, were far apart politically and the allied suggestion that they meet the supreme council as one body seemed to be futile.

Bekir Samy Bey, head of the Turkish Nationalist representatives, remained with his colleagues in his apartment, and while on the friendlisst social.

and, while on the friendlest social terms with Tewfik Pasha, delegates of the Sultan's government, had not budged an inch from his viewpoint that the Angora administration was the only government in Turkey, and that it demanded the status of an absolutely independent state

BRITISH EMBARRASSED
In the meantime harassed British liaison officers, urged by telephone messages from Downing street, were running from nee party to another. They found sympathy and support from Tewfik Pasha and his colleagues, but received little satisfaction from Bekir Samy Bey, who repeated his answer: 'I nione represent Turkey.''
